

IN RESERVE (cont.)

Simultaneously, an unidentified civilian was floundering in a similar predicament.

Morgan and Stamler went to aid Cancilla while Pfc Erwin Schoch—the third member of their party—stroked to the civilian's rescue. When Cancilla was safely beached, Stamler and Morgan alternately administered artificial respiration. After the artilleryman responded, they took him to the first aid station.

Schoch performed similar first aid on the civilian bather whose condition was not as serious.

The three reservists-to-the-rescue returned to Lejeune, completed their training stint and went home to Ohio with the 4th Signal Company.

TSgt. William J. Morris
END

I&I staffers from the 5th Signal Co., Long Beach entertained Miss Louisiana (L) and Miss Sweden (R). Latter became Miss Universe

THE OLD RESERVE CORPS . . .

"I HAVE read the reports of this Summer's training of the Marine Reserve with a great deal of interest, pride and pleasure. "The reports show that this organization is doing good work. It is upward and onward with them. Their improved efficiency in marksmanship and combat training, their loyalty in their attendance at their armory drills, which they do voluntarily, and their conduct have been remarkable and the cause of favorable comment in many reports and from many sources. As Major General Commandant, I want to take this opportunity to congratulate the officers and men of the Marine Corps Reserve on the fine work they are doing and to commend them for the valuable services they are rendering the Marine Corps, the Country, and their contribution to the National Defense.

/s/ B. H. Fuller
Major General Commandant"

Commandant's remarks following Summer training in 1933.

New Orleans city councilman James Fitzmorris put the finishing touch to a poster honoring "Marine Reserve Week" as reservists looked on